

Legal Aspects and Issues of 'The Stop' Constitutional Searches and Seizures

Travis White

Travis White has been a practicing attorney in Oklahoma since 2003. During this time, White has served in a variety of practice areas. White's experience includes service as a prosecutor in a metropolitan DA's office and as First Assistant District Attorney for the third largest judicial district in Oklahoma. In addition to his service as a prosecutor, White has also previously served as General Counsel for the Oklahoma Bureau of Narcotics (OBN) where his role also included a broader range of practice areas, to include but not limited to, the litigation of administrative, civil, and criminal matters throughout the State of Oklahoma and now he presently serves as Chief Legal Counsel for the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation (OSBI). In 2008, White was awarded Prosecutor of the Year by the Association of Oklahoma Narcotic Enforcers (AONE). White currently is a member on the AONE Board where he serves as the First Vice President. White has been privileged to instruct numerous officers and attorneys over the past twenty years and has instructed in multiple states in various practice areas with an emphasis on areas including legal issues related to search and seizure, use of force, and interviews and interrogations.

Offered Twice
on Thursday

